

The Social Dimensions of Health Institute invites you to a seminar to discuss themes in a recently published book called Humanising Healthcare: Patterns of Hope for a System under Strain by Margaret Hannah

Wednesday 25th March 2015
13.30 to 16.30
University of Dundee
1LG03 Dalhousie Building

Light refreshments will be available
A more detailed programme will be sent out to those wishing to attend

To book your place, please email Rosanne Bell (r.c.bell@dundee.ac.uk)

“Contemporary medicine has lost sight of the central role of human relationships within healthcare. In this profoundly important book, Margaret Hannah explores both the destructive effects of this loss and the ways in which strong interpersonal relationships can be recreated and once again become the foundation of appropriate and affordable healthcare.” Dr Iona Heath, former President of the Royal College of General Practitioners

HUMANISING HEALTHCARE

Patterns of Hope for a
System under Strain

Dr Margaret Hannah

